

Next Step Up To Commission

(An Editorial)

ANY motorist knows you can't go forward by throwing the automobile's mechanism into reverse gear.

By the same reasoning, Monroe County can't expect to make any progress in child care by eliminating several necessary services now being performed by the Children's Aid Society.

But that's exactly what is about to happen starting Feb. 1 as the result of the controversy that has raged between the CAS and the County Commissioners for over a month.

The society has provided foster home care for hundreds of children for more than 28 years. It also has expanded its program to include protective care and counseling, an adoption service and special care, all for the benefit of children and adults in the community.

The commissioners now propose to take over the foster home care of the children presently on CAS rolls. What will happen to the other essential services performed by the agency?

Many people will be shocked to learn that the latter functions will be dropped shortly, because the Children's Aid Society cannot do a good job on even a limited basis if the county withdraws its financial support.

It will receive approximately $11,000 from the Community Chest, but that will not be enough to pay all the costs of hiring an outside worker, an office clerk, office rental, travel expenses and other incidentals.

CAS directors have agreed to mediate nine of the ten demands set forth by the commissioners. They now feel it is up to the county officials to go along with them on the remaining demand that A. J. Molitor, executive secretary, be dismissed forthwith.

We agree that the directors have gone as far as they can go without losing the essential support they now receive from the Pennsylvania Children's Aid Society, services which should be continued here by all means since we are a small county and must, on frequent occasions, draw upon the expanded program of the state organization.

The tenth demand is one which, we sincerely feel, need not be settled by the commissioners' Feb. 1 deadline—unless, that is, we want to regress.

The situation existing between the commissioners and Mr. Molitor is such that a workable relationship is not possible, and it is understandable that they wish the executive secretary's dismissal.

However, because of the desperate shortage of qualified social workers on a national level, the commissioners are being unrealistic in demanding his immediate release.

The wise approach, it seems to us, is to continue the secretary in his present position until a workable policy can be reached and another social worker whose credentials are recognized by the State society can take over.

This course would maintain the close working ties linking the CAS with the fine group of foster parents who care for the children. It would also prevent the unequalled persecution of a man whose CAS superiors feel has done a competent job for his agency and whose future career should not be jeopardized because of a personality clash.

In fairness to the CAS directors, it should be said they have done a commendable job, without pay, down through the years and neither do they deserve to be persecuted for fighting for a cause they know is worthy.

The commissioners have every right to demand a close liaison with the society and deserve the confidence of every CAS worker and director.

They should realize, of course, that qualified and competent social workers are hard to find in any field. We feel they are the ones who should make the first move to clean up the mess they created by virtue of the method they employed to dissolve the CAS-county relationship. The alternative is to set the county back more than 28 years, to the days before the CAS was formed.

Wreckage Of Downed Plane Yields 50 Bodies

By GEORGE TAYLOR AND BILL JOHNSON

HOLDKROFT, Va. (AP)—The fire-blackened wreckage of a Capital Airlines Viscount yielded the last of 50 bodies Tuesday, nearly 15 hours after the Chicago-Norfolk plane pancaked into a swampy ravine near here.

Throughout the day rescue workers toiled under a clear sky in marked contrast to the fog and rain that shrouded the area when the prop-jet airliner crashed Monday night. The last two bodies brought out were the stewardesses, finally reached by searchers who crawled on hands and knees from the nose through the still-smoldering ruins.

Immediately after these bodies were removed, teams of investigators began sifting through the tangled debris looking for clues that might show why the plane fell.

A spokesman for the Civil Aeronautics Board termed the crash pattern "a little unusual. It was as if it had been let down by parachute." There was no swath cut through the trees, such as a falling plane usually makes. A black gum tree impaled the plane and thrust 30 feet through the mid-section of the fuselage. Only six trees in the immediate area showed any marks of the tragedy.

Cause of the crash was not readily apparent.

The pilot, Capt. James B. Fornasero, 50, made a routine radio check with the Norfolk tower, at about 10 p. m. Then at 10:20 only 10 minutes before the plane was due to land, trouble, apparently developed.

Three times the craft circled over the farm home of Robert H. Tench. The last time the engines roared as if they were wide open—and then silence.

Each body brought from the plane was strapped in, an indication those aboard expected a crash landing. The bodies of the stewardesses, in their seats facing the tail, were held by safety belts.

It was the nation's worst air disaster since Feb. 3, 1959. Then 63 persons perished in the crash of an American Airlines plane in the East River while attempting a landing at New York's La Guardia Airport. Only three months ago, 26 of 27 persons died when a Piedmont Airlines plane slammed into the Blue Ridge Mountains near Charlottesville, Va.

The Capital plane, flight 20, had left Washington at 9:48 p. m. with 46 passengers—29 men, 14 women and 3 children—and a crew of four. Forty-one of the passengers boarded the plane in Washington for the short hop to Norfolk. The others were through passengers from Chicago who came in on another section of the flight and switched planes in Washington. The airline said this was routine on many flights through the capital.

Also on the plane was Mrs. Eugene Gilbert, 25, of New York City. With her husband, who writes the column "What Young People Think" for The Associated Press, Mrs. Gilbert operated a youth research firm.

Other passengers included Sister Josephine, a nun from DePaul Hospital, Norfolk; N. M. Regner, reporter for the Norfolk Virginian-Pilot; Sam Tabet, Norfolk manufacturer; John B. Reilly, 33, of Norfolk, a tobacco company sales manager; and Albert W. Rueff, 52, and Charles A. Truhn Jr., 42, executives of the Ford Motor Co., Louisville, Ky.

Other crew members were Philip Henry Cullum Jr., 36, the pilot; and the stewardesses, Diane Margaret O'Donnell, 26, and Brigitte Friede Helene Joridi, a native of Germany who would have been 24 Wednesday.

Early arrivals at the scene said the victims apparently were dead before the fire licked through the plane.

U. S. Defenses Strong, Gates Says

Reds May Try Shot At Moon

By PRESTON GROVER

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet use of the central Pacific as a rocket proving ground may lead to a shot at Mars and a new drive to the moon.

Strong indications of this have been given by Soviet astronomers in interviews and in articles in Soviet newspapers and scientific magazines. It apparently adds up to something besides talk.

The Soviet government early this month warned all shipping and planes to steer clear, from Jan. 15 to Feb. 15, of a 45,000-square-mile zone southwest of Hawaii while it conducted experiments with powerful new rockets. It said heavy first or second stages might fall in the area.

This followed publication in the last 1959 issue of the Soviet Academy of Sciences Bulletin of an article detailing what would be needed in new moon projects and what might be done about photographing Mars through a telescope on a satellite.

Prof. G. V. Petrovich, writing in the academy bulletin outlined what the Russians hope to do with a telescope-equipped satellite.

"The development of a heavy well-oriented artificial satellite equipped with a powerful telescope which could be automatically aimed by remote control might lift the curtain which from time immemorial has concealed space from the human eye," Petrovich said.

"Owing to the transparency of the Martian atmosphere, it will be possible to study the surface of Mars by means of telescopes installed on artificial satellites of the earth or Mars or on space probes."

"It is essential, however, to insure good quality transmission of photographs to the earth. Any distortions in transmission of the images would greatly offset the advantages of the extraterrestrial observatory or even reduce them to naught."

"The best thing of course would be to recover the magazine with the films."

Although the article was written before the dates were announced for the Jan. 15-Feb. 15 experiments, this reference to recovery of films pointed to a possibility that some such operation may be attempted in the Pacific.

Plane Crash In Turkey

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—A twin-jet plane of Scandinavian Airlines plunged explosively into a hilltop within sight of Ankara's airport Tuesday night, killing 41 of the 42 persons aboard.

The crash raised another mystery in the series of baffling recent plane crashes in widely separated parts of the world.

Some eyewitness said the plane appeared to explode high in the air when it was due to approach the airport. Others said they saw flames as the plane roared down. Still others said the explosion and fire followed the crash.

Airport experts said that although the weather was not ideal it had nothing to do with the crash.

U. S. Envoy, Red In Talks

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—U. S. Ambassador Jacob Beam met for two hours Tuesday with Wang Ping-nan, Communist Chinese envoy in Warsaw. It was their 22nd get-together in a series of talks that began in September 1958. From the beginning, neither has said what they discuss. It is assumed Beam is continuing U. S. attempts to obtain the release of five Americans imprisoned by the Red Chinese.

Japan And US Sign Pact Of Partnership

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States and Japan signed Tuesday a historic treaty which President Eisenhower said sets up a new "indestructible partnership" between this country and its former foe.

Eisenhower and Japan's Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi joined in ushering in the pact which raises Japan—a defeated, disarmed and occupied enemy after World War II—to the status of equal partner in the free world camp.

The President did not sign the document. Secretary of State Christian A. Herter acted for the United States.

More than 70 top officials from the two countries gathered for the signing ceremony in the East Room of the White House. In this room, President James Buchanan received the first Japanese envoys a century ago.

One of the U. S. signers was Douglas MacArthur II, ambassador to Japan. His uncle led U. S. forces to victory over Japan 15 years ago.

Kishi once was jailed by the Allies as a war criminal. He had been a high official in the wartime Japanese government.

But there was not a single reference to the war bitterness in the glowing speeches.

Under the 1,000-word treaty, similar in many ways to pacts this country has with 41 other free world allies, the United States pledges to come to Japan's defense in case of armed attack on Japan.

Japan grants the United States use of military bases in Japan without time limit.

Tokyo wins a say in U. S. activities which might affect Japan's interest in the Far East.

And the two countries promise to cooperate economically, and to settle any disputes between them by peaceful means.

Signing for Japan were Kishi and four aides headed by Foreign Minister Aichi Fujiyama. The three American signers were led by Herter.

Earlier, Kishi met with Eisenhower for nearly two hours. Results of the talks were not immediately announced. Another meeting was set for Wednesday.

Lawrence Hails U.S. Works Aid

HARRISBURG (AP)—Gov. David L. Lawrence Tuesday hailed as realistic — "for a change" — President Eisenhower's budget for public works in Pennsylvania.

"My only regret," he told a news conference, "is that no construction money is included in the budget request for the Curwensville Reservoir in Clearfield County or for the Ridgway flood control project in Elk County."

The Curwensville Reservoir would be on the West Branch of the Susquehanna River. It was allocated $280,000 in federal funds for planning. The Ridgway project involves Elk Creek, a tributary of the Clarion River.

The governor said: "There is no reason, however, why both projects cannot move out of the planning and into the construction stage this fiscal year."

The President proposed spending 28 million dollars for planning and actual construction in Pennsylvania, including $4,530,000 for Kinzua Dam on the Allegheny River in northwestern Pennsylvania.

The governor asked Maurice Goddard, secretary of forests and waters, to push the Highways Department to award as soon as possible a proposed highway relocation contract at the dam.

"This project, a key flood control dam and low-flow control dam for the entire Allegheny-Ohio River system, has been subjected to more than 20 years of delay and legal wrangling," said Lawrence. "It is wonderful to see it get under way."

Other news conference developments:

Highways Probe—The governor urged the Senate Highways Committee to sound out all possible views on its investigation of the Highways Department starting next Tuesday.

He said organizations backing such major projects as the Keystone Shortway, Anthracite Expressway, Erie - West Virginia Freeway and others should be invited to attend.

Traffic Safety—A full-scale re-vamping of traffic safety regulations is expected to be completed within a month, Lawrence said. "It will affect everything on the highway," he added.

Fish Commission—Lawrence had no specific comment on the resignation of William Voigt as executive director of the Fish Commission, but added:

"I'm satisfied with whatever the Fish Commission does. I think they're a pretty good body of men."

Boards—The governor said he had not made up his mind on appointments to the State Harness Racing Commission nor on whether he would retain Patrick E. Kerwin as chairman of the Liquor Control Board after his term expires in March.

Flood Control — The governor said it was "welcome news" that $2,200,000 was allocated for the Shenango River Reservoir at Sharpsville.

He expressed a hope that Army Engineers would continue their studies on French Creek in Meadville. The Army Engineers spent $25,000 on planning last year. Although no money was earmarked in the budget for further planning, Lawrence said, the engineers could make an additional allocation from its own funds.

The General State Authority, at a meeting during the day, approved spending $1,777,800 for three flood control projects financed entirely by state funds.

They are the Moosic No. 2, Lackawanna County, $600,000; Durycia, Luzerne County, $382,000; and Danville No. 1, Montour County, $795,800.

Only Madman Would Attack, Senators Told

WASHINGTON (AP) — Top Defense Department officials briefed Senators Tuesday on the state of U. S. arms. Afterward Sen. Richard B. Russell (D-Ga.) said that "at present I think we are strong enough to prevent an attack, except by a madman."

Other senators who heard Secretary of Defense Thomas S. Gates Jr. behind closed doors came away with similar impressions.

Two From State Die On Plane

NORFOLK, Va. (AP)—Norman Regner got a fellow Norfolk Virginian-Pilot reporter to work for him Monday so he could have a long weekend in Washington.

Regner died Monday night in the crash of a Norfolk-based Capital Airlines plane at Holdcroft, Va., as that long weekend was ending.

Regner, a native of Reading, Pa., was 26 Friday. He was the son of Rabbi and Mrs. Sidney L. Regner of New Rochelle, N. Y. Rabbi Regner is executive president of the Central Conference of American Rabbis.

Regner joined the Virginia-Pilot staff in 1956 and covered beats in Portsmouth and Norfolk. He served in the Army from October 1956 to November 1958.

He was graduated in 1955 from the University of Pennsylvania, where he majored in political science. He received a master's degree from Columbia University's Graduate School of Journalism in 1956.

While at Columbia he covered United Nations activities and court proceedings in New York City under a student-training plan with the New York Times.

He was campus correspondent for the Philadelphia Bulletin while at the University of Pennsylvania.

Another Pennsylvania native and her daughter were killed in the crash.

She was Mrs. Judith Van Duzer of Clarks Summit, wife of a U. S. man based at Norfolk. The daughter was Madeleine, 22 months old.

CSA Members Criticize Operations

HARRISBURG (AP)—Members of the General State Authority Board Tuesday criticized the manner in which the authority has been operating and ordered a complete study.

"We ought to get down to a set of hard rules to operate by," said Gov. David L. Lawrence, board chairman.

"I'm very much disturbed, in my year's experience here, with the way in which we operate," Lawrence told the board, which is made up of government and legislative leaders.

"We're handling millions and millions of dollars here," the governor pointed out.

Board members also discussed a statewide space utilization study of state buildings to determine construction needs, but decided that the survey would not come within the scope of the borrow-and-build agency's operations.

Lawrence said the administration, instead, would proceed with the proposed plan.

Under the proposal, the study would look at buildings presently owned by the state to see if the space was being used wisely. It also would consider the feasibility of building state office buildings where offices now are rented.

Lawrence said the study should give some thought to construction of state buildings in places other than Harrisburg.

Castro Squeezes Cuban Free Press

HAVANA (AP) — Prime Minister Fidel Castro's government took a tighter grip on the Cuban press Tuesday through a control-by-the-workers strategy that many fear will be extended to other businesses.

Jorge Zayas, publisher of Avance, an afternoon daily, sharply critical of the Castro regime, has taken refuge in Ecuador's embassy, an associate said.

He refused to permit employees to append "notes of rectification" to news stories and editorials which they regard as unfair to the government.

The workers took over publication of the paper Monday. A committee of employees headed by newsmen Juan Gomez, a former reporter, Tuesday named a provisional administrative board of editorial and shop workers to continue publication of Avance.

No executives were on hand at Avance. Gomez said all 150 employees are helping to put out the paper.

Information, another independent paper, adopted other tactics. It announced it will challenge the workers' right to pin the notes to stories by appealing to the Tribunal of Social and Constitutional Guarantees. The appeal will be based on Cuba's fundamental law, approved by the Castro Cabinet, dealing with freedom of expression and other rights.

The campaign against Cuba's independent press began recently with a directive from the Union of Editorial and Printshop Workers to its members to combat news from abroad which they consider hostile to the Castro regime. The workers were told to attach notes of rectification at the bottom of objectionable stories, labeling the news as untrue and unethical. Later the workers were told to tag editorials also.

The campaign developed with an assisting nudge from Castro, who rejected an appeal by the independent publishers to intervene.

Workers Argue Added Pay Case

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Federal Judge Herbert P. Sorg said Tuesday he will rule later whether steelworkers performing their duties under a Taft-Hartley injunction are legally entitled to a four-cent hourly cost-of-living increase.

The case was argued in U. S. District Court by the United Steelworkers and several companies which still are involved in contract disputes with the USW. About 20,000 production workers are affected.

Meanwhile, in Weirton, W. Va., the Weirton Steel Co. and the Independent Steelworkers Union announced they have agreed on a new contract.

Court Martial Procedure Answer Asked

WASHINGTON (AP) — Both Congress and the government were asked Tuesday to come forth quickly with ways for handling the prosecution of American civilians accused of crimes while serving with U. S. military forces overseas.

This followed on the heels of Monday's Supreme Court ruling that peacetime court-martial trials of civilians violate the constitutional right to trial by jury. This applies whether the civilians work for the military or are dependents of those who do, and regardless of the crime.

Sen. Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D-Mo.), in a statement, called on the Justice and Defense departments to say what their plans are to deal with the situation. Both departments have declined comment until they can study the court's opinions.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating (R-N.Y.), introduced a resolution to set up a special seven-man Senate committee to explore ways of giving federal courts jurisdiction over the civilian defendants.

The court's decision, Keating said, "affects the safety of almost half a million Americans accompanying our armed forces overseas, and could lead to many potentially very serious international incidents."

He suggested the committee explore the desirability of amending the laws and treaties relating to the jurisdiction of U. S. federal courts over American civilians abroad. Action should be taken during this session, Keating added.

Yale Students Are Arrested

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP) — New Haven police arrested three more Yale students Tuesday as they continued their investigation of sex antics in a Yale dormitory involving a group of students and a 14-year-old girl.

Three other students were arrested Monday. Police said the girl — who has been referred to juvenile authorities — picked out their pictures in a Yale yearbook and then identified them in person at police headquarters.

Those arrested Tuesday, all juniors, were Jack F. Adler Jr., 20, of Elkins Park, Pa.; Stephen White, 19, of Paterson, N. J.; and Donald B. Murphy, 19, of Chappaqua, N. Y.

The charge against all arrested so far is lascivious carriage, which covers a variety of sexual misdemeanors. It carries a maximum sentence of six months in jail, a $100 fine, or both. The students will appear in City Court Jan. 27.

Dr. Harnwell said the merger probably will be completed by September. The new school is being named after the late John Henry Towne, benefactor and trustee of the university.

Police Nab Young Boys For Vandalism

THE INCIDENT of vandalism at the East Stroudsburg Baptist Church has been solved with the apprehension of two young boys, East Stroudsburg Police reported yesterday.

The vandalism occurred Friday, Jan. 15, was the afternoon.

East Stroudsburg Police Chief Travis Seese, who released the information yesterday, credited John Lambert, elementary principal of the North Courtland St. School with providing information leading to the solving of the case.

Seese reported the vandalism occurred as follows:

The two boys, ages 8 and 10, went to school the morning of the incident, Seese reported, then failed to return to school after lunch.

Enter Church

Instead, while passing the church, they decided to enter the building and did so by using a key hung in the rear near a door.

After entering the building, the two boys found some crayons and began coloring, but tired of that and threw some clothing on the floor.

Finding a match in a drawer, one of the boys lit a piece of paper and threw it on top of the clothing, lighting the pile.

They then tried to put out the fire by throwing small cups of water on the blaze, however it had too good a start and the boys ran from the building in panic.

Hide Under Porch

Hiding under the porch of a nearby house, the two finally worked up their courage to return to the church, but found the fire still going.

They again tried to throw water in an attempt to put out the fire but once again failed.

They ran again and went down Harris St., hiding for a while, then finally going home.

The police, Seese said, have been investigating since Jan. 15.

PID Sets In Motion Plant Loans

HARRISBURG (AP) — The Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority Tuesday tentatively approved $386,500 in loans for construction of new plants intended to create 831 jobs.

The loans went to organizations in Lewisburg, Scranton, Hazleton and Wilkes-Barre.

Three other loans were given final approval. The $105,750 finally approved will provide funds for new plant construction and expansions at Connelville, Canton, and Troy.

The five projects given tentative approval included:

Scranton—a loan of $67,000 to the Scranton Lackawanna Industrial Building Co. to be used for the financing of a new plant with the estimated project cost set at $247,506.28 subject to the setting of final loan terms.

When completed this project will provide for 240 new factory jobs at an estimated annual payroll of $800,000.

Scranton—A loan of $112,500 to the Scranton Lackawanna Industrial Building Co. toward financing of a Carbondale project estimated to cost approximately $375,000 and to employ 200 persons with an annual payroll of $500,000.

Hazleton—A loan of $66,000 to the Greater Hazleton Community Area New Development Organization, Inc. to be used for expansion of existing facilities that will cost $220,000 and provide for 100 new factory jobs.

Wilkes-Barre—A loan of $81,000 to the Committee of 100, Inc. to be used for construction of a project that will cost approximately $270,000 and when completed will employ 150 persons with an annual payroll of $350,000.

THE political pot began boiling yesterday when Van D. Yetter, Monroe County's representative in the General Assembly, announced he will be a candidate for renomination at the Democratic primary election April 26.

Rep. Yetter thus became the first candidate to announce on either ticket.

He said he will campaign on his record as a member of the House for two terms in seeking renomination and, if successful, reelection at the November general election.

He was elected to his first two-year term in 1954 and served during the 1955-56 session. Out of office for one term, Rep. Yetter was named to a second term in 1958 and will serve until the end of the present year.

Out of 26 bills he introduced during the 1959 session, 12 were passed by both houses and signed into law by Gov. David L. Lawrence and six were passed by the House and referred to Senate committees where they were stalled.

Worked With Governor

Yetter recalled that he worked in close cooperation with the governor's office on all bills introduced with his sponsorship.

"Some of the bills which have now become law will have a major and highly desirable effect on all of Pennsylvania and in Monroe County," the assemblyman said. "I found the leadership in both houses very cooperative in introducing and pressing for passage of many of the bills."

Among major laws or amendments to existing laws which bear Yetter's name were the following:

House Bill 39—An emergency appropriation to the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority. This fund permitted the PIDA to approve loans to communities which had already made arrangements to meet local requirements for financing plants and attract new industries. The Authority has had an active part in the financing of 105 such local plants. Included, in the past, were participation in the Tru-Matic and Drackett Plants in Monroe County.

H. B. 300—Clarified enforcement of the Sales and Use Tax and placed the burden of proof on the Department of Revenue.

H. B. 480—Amended the vehicle Code and required erection of signs by the Highway Department on Pennsylvania Highways notifying motorists of the penalty for throwing trash or rubbish along roads. The law is more popularly as the "anti-litter" bill. It was given wide support by civic groups, motor clubs and women's organizations.

H. B. 2355—Amended existing law to require county officers to provide certified copies of Korean war veteran's discharge papers without charge. It further provided that fees which had already been paid for such copies would be refunded by the County.

H. B. 866—Dropped the word "Teachers" from the name of Pennsylvania's 14 State "Teachers' Colleges. Effect of the bill will be that the college in East Stroudsburg, for example, will be known as East Stroudsburg State College. The new law does not affect the aims or basic purposes of the colleges, since they will still be primarily concerned with the education of persons who intend to enter the teaching profession.

H. B. 831—Designed to facilitate movement of heavy or oversize equipment (such as that used in construction) the law requires the Highway Department to issue permits for movement of such equipment at the county office of the Highway Department. Previously it was necessary to apply for permits and receive them from district Highway Department offices.

Cites Cooperation

"I am especially pleased with the cooperation which has existed this past year and continues to exist between the office of Governor Lawrence and my own office," Yetter said. "Although I was one of the Democratic assemblymen who opposed application of the sales tax to automobile trade-ins—a measure which the Administration sponsored—this has in no way affected the reception I have been given in discussion of major legislation."

A former Democratic county chairman, Yetter also served two terms as a Smithfield Township supervisor.

Yetter, who is 46, is married and the father of four children. He has operated a farm machinery business at Marshalls Creek for 26 years. He is a member of several fraternal organizations, the Stroudsburg Rotary Club, Marshalls Creek Fire Co., Craig's Meadows Lutheran Church and president of the church council.

During the current House session, he serves on the following committees: agriculture, highways, game and conservation and is vice chairman of the committee on fish and fisheries. He was on the committee on committees when the House organized the session.

TB Society Hears '59 Reports

THE ANNUAL report of the executive secretary, Mrs. Estelle Fleming, was given at the business session of the Monroe County Tuberculosis and Health Society last night.

The report showed volunteer workers gave 350 hours of their time to the society during the past campaign in various tasks.

A comparison of figures showed that 9,900 letters were sent in 1959 while 6,250 were received. Funds received totaled $11,282.94. For 1958, it showed 9,786 letters were sent, 6,225 were received, and $10,933.59 received.

Health Ed Program

Under the health education program, the report showed 569 pamphlets distributed, 2,452 health tips given and 73 posters displayed.

Films were shown to 810 persons, and film strips shown to 190 people.

Boxes sent from the Graduate Chapter, Monroe County YMCA, were four to the Samuel Dixon State Tuberculosis Hospital, and one to the Norristown State Hospital.

Under the testing program, Dr. Fred Munson and Dr. Paul Shiffer made tests at the East Stroudsburg elementary schools to 78 first grade pupils.

Dr. Shiffer, presiding at the meeting, appointed Ward Kelpier and Jonas T. May to the nominating committee.

The Printed Word

Ever since the first real printer, Gutenberg, devised a method of using type of a kind to transcribe man's thoughts into printed words, the trade has grown into one of the most important in civilized man's world.

National Printing Week is presently being noted throughout the nation, and touches on just about every person's life in one way or another.

Printing is accepted by almost everyone as the easiest manner of producing and making permanent man's valuable ideas in order that they may continue to live and be passed on to the succeeding generations.

We, here in Monroe County, can well appreciate the value of the industry since a good number of our citizens are employed in the many printing shops and plants, including The Daily Record's, in the county. The telephone directory lists eight printing establishments in the county.

However, the most perishable printing done, so to speak, is the daily newspaper.

Until the subscriber reads his edition, it is fresh and vital. Afterwards, when desired news stories and pictures are clipped, it makes fine fish-wrapping.

Every day the newspaper across the nation print far more words than the average publishing firm selling books of all kinds.

John Peter Zenger, a New York printer in the time of the original Colonies, refused to bow down to official censor of his words, took the matter to court and won. This was the origin of Freedom of the Press in America.

Had not this freedom been maintained down through the years by the many publishers, we would not need today's many varied printing establishments. Only one line would be printed, and this would be the official text, as today in the Communist world.

Printing Week will extend to Jan. 23 and The Daily Record continues to extend its invitation to all groups to visit our plant to gain an insight into the workings of the printing industry.

George Sokolsky Says...

Young Lacks Logic, Tact

I have been privileged to read some correspondence between Senator Stephen M. Young and one of his constituents, Irwin S. Rhodes, a lawyer of Cincinnati. Rhodes wrote critically to his Senator, making this point:

"I note with considerable interest that you are listed as a principal speaker at a dinner at the Hotel New Yorker scheduled for November (December) 15th under the auspices of the Emergency Civil Liberties Committee."

To this, the Senator replies in a longish letter, the first paragraph of which reads:

"Am wondering if you wrote a letter of criticism and gave the benefit of your comments to President Eisenhower regarding his having a dinner guest the most ruthless Communist leader in the entire world. When Khrushchev was in this country, no one seemed concerned who dined with him or honored him. That is something for self-proclaimed patriots to think about."

This is clearly beside the point. President Eisenhower, as head of state, is required by the amenities of international conduct to have relations with heads of recognized nations.

Soviet Russia was recognized in 1933 by President Franklin D. Roosevelt after a period of 15 years, during which the United States refused to recognize that country.

Khrushchev seemed to visit this country in the entire world. He did not deliver such an address and if he did, it attracted hardly any notice. Certainly, it affected nothing serious in the world.

In his letter to Rhodes, Senator Young says:

"May I add that in my opinion, Fascist-minded directors of the NAM and the United States Chamber of Commerce—and I can personally name several—are in reality enemies of our free enterprise system and the American way of life."

This is a very interesting thesis and might be developed somewhat by the Senator. He says that he can name several directors of the NAM or the United States Chamber of Commerce who are Fascist-minded. Why not name them?

Perhaps the Senator will also enter the realm of psychology and explain what Fascist-minded means. It is so rare that one meets anyone who can give a tenable definition of what Fascism means or for that matter what Communism means. I have known Ohio Senators for many years but never came across Senator Young and therefore know nothing of his intellectual weight.

But when a man writes that if he were invited to address a banquet of the NAM or the Chamber of Commerce, he would do so if he had the time, I cannot help wondering what he would do about the Fascist-minded directors.

Would he shake hands with them? Would he break bread with them? It is curious what politicians are willing to do to get a chance to make a speech!

Senator Young sent Rhodes a memorandum on which he had written and signed the following legend:

"Sir: 'It is suggested that you, a self-appointed vigilante, read the enclosed copy of a telegram and then cool off a whole lot. Stephen M. Young'"

Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty, saith the proverb. To call an American a "self-appointed vigilante" is to praise him as a good citizen. The Emergency Civil Liberties Committee draft program for 1959 contains the following paragraphs:

"We will work for the repeal of repressive legislation that was pushed through in the McCarthy days. Specifically we call for the repeal by Congress of:

"1. The 'Smith Act'
2. The Internal Security Act
3. The Communist Control Act"

"We also call for the repeal by state legislatures of various so-called internal security, teacher screening, and loyalty oath acts."

So much for this earth-shaking correspondence. It would seem as though Senator Young might employ a discreet letter-writer. Also it seems to me that representatives of the people might try to be courteous to their constituents.

After all public officials come and go but the voters remain on forever. So many elected to Congress do manage to be forgotten after a single, accidental term.

The winter months bring as well as snow injuries due to the icy conditions. One of the major casualties of the season thus far has been the sidelining of George Graff.

Graff, known throughout the world for his "Irish Eyes are Smiling" epic, broke his shoulder the other day.

George, the smiling one like his famous tune, fractured his shoulder in a fall on the ice on Main St. The report is that Graff is recuperating nicely these days.

Sore bones were probably experienced this week by Mrs. Samuel Everett, Mrs. Sam, a fine skater; did the light fantastic on the ice at the Fifth St. pond Sunday, circling the pond many times during the entire afternoon.

What about husband Sam? He was home eyeing television. Naturally he felt better the next day.

Arch Rundle and his buddies of the fire department world are planning the Smokey Stovers' annual dance. Reports have it that the affair will be held in October.

Usually the firemen held the event just before the Lenten season got under way. But it was moved back this year.

Henry Weiss, the meat man from Saylorsburg, is hoping the chance comes again for him to visit his brother in New York City and take in the wonderful sights.

Henry and his missus are still raving about the wonderful time the pair had the last time they toured the Gotham in company with Henry's metropolitan-known brother.

Lester (Cappy) Youngkin, the Delaware Water Gap resident, knows he has one "friend" in the world. He is Bob Tweedie of East Stroudsburg.

When Cap was laid up with a broken arm, brother Tweedie came to visit the stricken Cap resident. After all the "how are you feeling" formalities were over, Tweedie asked Youngkin if he could borrow his gun for hunting.

Today Cappy wonders whether the "injured" got together was just a plan to get his firearms??

Interpreting The News

Abolition Of MVD Seen As Soviet Ruse

By J. M. Roberts (AP News Analyst)
Simultaneously with the Soviet announcement of the abolition of the MVD, a group of Harvard experts warned the Senate Foreign Relations Committee against relying too heavily on the hope that improved standards of living tend to erode Soviet totalitarianism.

The MVD or Ministry of Interior controlled the secret police. It has gradually been undercut by Soviet Premier Khrushchev. Its abolition tends to encourage trust among the Soviet peoples and so perhaps may actually strengthen the hands of the totalitarianists.

It also is a gesture toward Western opinion similar to the one made when Stalin abolished the old Comintern during World War II. That gesture meant only a temporary end to the subversive activities of international Communism.

The Harvard Center for International Affairs in a report to the committee warned against basing American policy on such outward developments and suggests it should pay more attention, instead to positive positions not based merely on reaction to the conflict with the Soviet Union.

A part of the report deals with the newly-investigated Allied effort to aid underdeveloped countries and raises an old question with regard to the American attitude toward neutralism. It suggests that instead of trying to win these countries over to active cooperation with the West, the assurance of their independence should be the chief objective. While the United States is encouraging a new cooperative aid program by the Western powers, it is also contributing to a stepped-up United Nations program.

The question being asked by some students is whether the Western powers might make greater progress by concentrating everything in one program, through the UN.

It is argued that this would eliminate African-Asian fears of selfish intent and represent real concentration on their independence rather than their political allegiance.

Thus, they argue, the lines might be more clearly drawn between the Western economic program which the West adjudges to be designed to subvert aided countries.

Reports From Congress

Caucus Drops In Favor

By Congressional Quarterly
Washington — What has become of the Congressional caucus?

It used to be the instrument through which party control was maintained in both the House and the Senate. But it has fallen into marked decline in influence and power.

The result has been a display of more individualism among both House and Senate Members and at the same time a strengthening of the influence of the party leadership.

Woodrow Wilson wrote in 1885 that "each party in the Senate finds its real, its permanent, its effective organization in its caucus."

But that was when Members, having decided party policy in conference, considered the decision binding on their actions on the Senate floor.

Current Dissatisfaction — The recent unsuccessful efforts of Sen. William Proxmire (D. Wis.) and Albert Gore (D. Tenn.), among others, to revive the caucus never contemplated the strict provision that the decisions of the caucus were binding on the Members. They wanted more frequent caucuses to provide greater influence on party policy by all members of the party rather than a few leaders.

In 1959, the Democratic conferences in the House and the Senate each met only once. The Republican conference in the House met about a dozen times and in the Senate about once a month.

Crux of the current Democratic leadership dispute in the Senate is seen in the once-a-year caucus held at the beginning of the year. The floor leader automatically becomes chairman of the Policy Committee, which schedules the legislative program, and the Steering Committee, which makes Democratic committee assignments. The leader appoints the other members of both groups.

Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D. Texas) is Majority Leader. Under this caucus arrangement, he is in firm control of party policy. Pressured by six liberal Democratic Senators, Johnson Jan. 7 agreed to hold more frequent conferences this year, but an attempt to increase the number of Senators on the Policy Committee, provide that all its members be elected by the caucus and convert it into an organization for expressing party policy was defeated Jan. 12 by the Democratic Senators, 51 to 12.

After this defeat, Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D. Ill.) commented that "a number of Senators are not quite ready for self-government."

Background to Dispute — However, the very discipline of the binding caucus in the past is what led to its decline. For example, in 1867, the legislative decisions of the Republican caucus were opposed by Sen. Charles Sumner (Mass.). He gave notice that he would not be bound by them. This was denounced as highly improper but Sumner maintained it was his duty to attend the caucus, oppose what he believed to be unwise and then, on the floor, to withstand what he considered an unconstitutional limitation on public business.

In 1915, during Senate debate on the ship-purchase bill, Democratic Sen. Gilbert M. Hitchcock (Neb.) denounced his party's attempts to bind Senators to vote in caucus and offered a resolution on the floor "that they (Senators) are required hereby, and under the Constitution, to vote in accordance with their own convictions and judgment, and they shall not subordinate them to the decree of secret party caucuses or other outside influences."

It Helped Wilson — The power of the caucus reached its peak during the first Wilson Administration and was given much credit for enactment of Wilson's "New Freedom" program.

However, a rebellion against caucus discipline weakened the powers of the institution after World War I. In recent years it has been used less frequently to determine a party position on legislation.

The principal remaining function of the caucus in both the House and Senate is the selection of party leaders at the beginning of each new Congress. Whether the Johnson agreement to hold more frequent conferences of Senate Democrats will produce significant developments remains to be seen. The common view that the caucus should not be binding minimizes the chances of its becoming very effective.

by their personnel has cost more than by untrained personnel.

However, it was non-political and the best their budget could provide. At no time was the lot of the children made worse. Always was the effort made to erase the stigma of neglect and dependency through improvement and help.

No one can question the dedicated purpose of the organization and its unpaid Board of Directors. Monroe County Citizens should think twice before scrapping the present method of handling dependent and neglected children. But by the grace of God, one of those children might be you or I.

MRS. JOHN F. HENRY

Dear Editor:

It does not necessarily follow that the care of dependent and neglected children by the Monroe County Commissioners would become political. However, what is to prevent it from becoming so?

Dependent and neglected children need every last bit of intelligent understanding, love and affection possible to make up for the cruelty and suffering which has been their lot. These children have not asked their parents to neglect them and make them dependent upon the public for the necessities and perhaps just a few of the pleasures of life.

The least we can do for them is to meet their needs with sympathetic but competent and trained supervision.

The Children's Aid Society has tried to do all these things for over thirty years and amidst many adversities. Perhaps the care of these children

Is Rock 'n' Roll On Way Out?

There may be a pleasant note after all to the "payola" story. Now that disc jockeys are being persuaded to let their conscience guide them once again, it may be possible that this is the beginning of the end for rock 'n' roll music.

Rock 'n' roll has been the bane of the music business for too many years. Impressionable youngsters in their teens were easy prey. They were sold on the idea this was the only music characteristic of their age.

Parents were driven to their bedrooms to escape the sound. Children picked up an artifice taste in music. Musicians with long sideburns began to be looked upon as public enemies by many adults.

Unless we're mistaken, a huge number of songs of the '20s, '30s and '40s are coming back in new versions. It is too early for a great influx of new, clean-sounding ballads to be written, but the signs are pointing in the right direction.

More good news came Sunday night as the recording industry presented its annual "grammy" awards. Not a single rock 'n' roller made the list. The closest was Bobby Darin, saluted for the record of the year for his performance on "Mack the Knife." Darin says he's a former rock 'n' roller.

Rock 'n' roll has been blamed for juvenile delinquency, the high adult suicide rate, fallen arches, America's deficiency in the sciences, and contamination of the cranberry bogs. None of these charges is true. Rock 'n' roll is just bad music and the faster it dies, the better off we'll be.

The Pennsylvania Story

Lawrence Frustrated

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — "Frustration" may well become the best word ultimately to describe the first two years in office of the Lawrence Administration.

Mr. Lawrence has just begun his second year of a four-year tenure and young though the new year may be, indications on Capitol Hill are strong that another year of frustration is in the offing for the former four-time mayor of Pittsburgh.

The bottling up of the Democratic Lawrence Administration during the past year, although there were occasions when the cork was pulled — was due almost exclusively to the fact that he faced a split Legislature, with anti-administration Republicans firmly holding the brake lever in the Senate.

The legislative session this year — first on the every year annual meet timetable — promises to be "frustration" duplication of last year's legislative hoodwink insofar as the Administration is concerned.

The threads will be picked up when lawmakers return on Monday to wind up their three weeks recess following the opening of the 1960 session January 5.

What can be expected this year can be largely seen from the results of last year. The political composition of the House and Senate remain unchanged for the 1960 session.

Some of the frustration high points of 1959, which definitely point to the tenor of 1960:

The Lawrence Administration wanted a short legislative session. (No administration ever wants the legislative branch around longer than necessary. The power vested in the Legislature poses a constant threat to the executive branch with its constitutional vesting "boom lowering" powers.)

What happened? The Legislature stayed in session throughout the entire year, even dragging over to January 4 — thus establishing itself as the second longest session in history.

In 1960 Mr. Lawrence has been plumping for a quick, short "businesslike" session — but Republican lawmakers who hold the controlling stick in the Senate have been working toward an extended session, with recessing the order of the day.

Budgetwise, the Lawrence Administration found itself on the short end of the deal during 1959 and although it wound up with an increase over the budget allocations of the preceding fiscal period, it was short of Administration requests.

In 1960 there is little likelihood of any financial gains this year. Senate Republicans are not about to permit the levying of any additional taxes if they can possibly avoid it. They are after the label of the "party responsible for holding back spending." Only break may come on the school subsidy front — and Republicans up to this point have largely picked up the credit ball on this score.

The confirmation front: the 1959 session saw Senate Republicans bottling up a host of confirmations on gubernatorial appointments to key posts on ranking boards and commissions. Appointees without confirmation are unable to assume office and without an interim between the 1959 and 1960 session there was no chance for "interim appointments." The result: stalemate and frustration.

In 1960, chances are good that the GOP Senate will continue its "heel-dragging" on confirmation of gubernatorial appointments, all of which by the way were resubmitted on the opening day of the 1960 session.

Mr. Lawrence oftentimes has praised the "bipartisan cooperation" he enjoyed while mayor of Pittsburgh but is irked by lack of it here on Capitol Hill. NB to Mr. Lawrence: Pittsburgh is not Harrisburg!

Solve Storage Problems Now With New Wall-To-Wall Closet

SOLVING storage problems is pretty much like the weather. It's something people talk about, but seldom do anything more than talk. Recently, we began getting letters, lots of letters from people who had stopped talking and started writing. They wanted patterns for all kinds of storage closets so we began to give this problem serious study.

First, we developed a wall-to-wall closet with bi-folding doors that can be built into any 4 ft. or wider space. This pattern No. 736 was popular from the start since it provided all kinds of clothes storage.

Next, we turned our attention to a small cabinet that could be used in a dining or living room, bedroom, den or playroom. Thanks to pre-formed plastic drawers which are now available complete with side guides, anyone can build the cabinet illustrated above in very little time at relatively low cost.

The cabinet provides drawer space for silver, linens, bar accessories, as well as ample storage for bottled goods. If used in a bedroom, the right side can either be transformed into a shoe cabinet or a second bank of drawers can be installed.

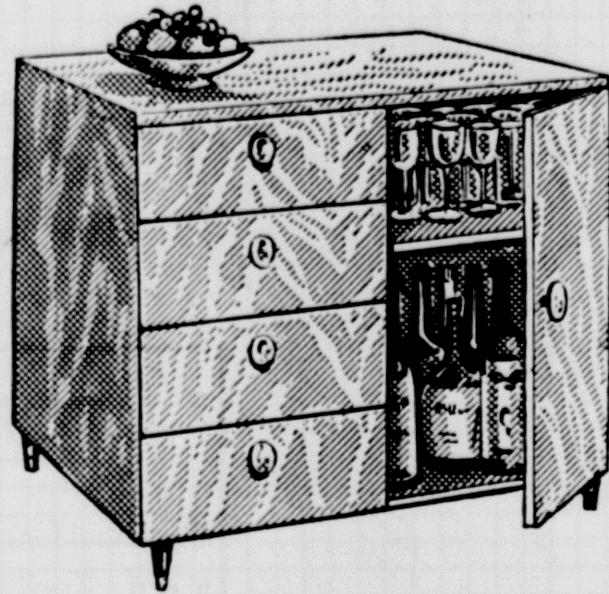

The pattern offered below assumes you have never built anything like this before and explains construction in step by step procedure everyone can follow. A complete list of materials tells what to buy and where each is used.

By following the pattern method of construction even amateurs make like "pros." Almost by magic the cabinet takes shape and starts to serve the family in a most pleasant way.

Working with your hands provides many wonderful hours of complete relaxation. Try it and you'll discover a happier way to spend your spare time.

The wall to wall closet previously mentioned is Pattern No. 736 and is $1. The Bar-Buffer, Pattern No. 718 illustrated, sells for 50 cents. Send coin or money order for patterns to The Daily Record, P. O. Box 215, Pleasantville, N. Y. Send 35 cents for our catalog illustrating over 300 other build it yourself projects and 25 cents extra if you wish first-class mail.

Beauty And Comfort

Featured In Design

BEAUTY, comfort and economy are a rare combination to find in any design. This week's feature home, however, has these qualities and more.

Here's the type of home that lends a picturesque distinction to a community and a satisfying ease to living. Yet, the average home site is adequate to accommodate its dollar-saving dimensions.

Exceptionally compact, this design boasts of three good-size bedrooms, family room, kitchen, spacious living room, bath and second lavatory plus a two-car garage.

Modern in every respect, yet in a restrained manner, H-554 has a gently shaped hip-roof, simple but interesting wall surfaces, and glass where light is needed, no glass where privacy is important.

To prevent direct intrusion into the living room, vestibule is set out from the interior.

Guest closet faces the entrance door.

The living room is larger than average and has plenty of wall area for good furniture positioning. Access to every other room is available from the living room due to an L shaped center hallway.

Occupying half of the interior's rear portion is the family-kitchen area. The kitchen has the popular broken "U" design with the open end facing the family room. In spite of limited space, the designer has amply provided the homemaker with cabinet and counter facilities plus a very efficient work center around the centrally located sink.

Adjacent to the kitchen are lavatory, side entrance, garage entrance and basement stairs.

At the other end are the three bedrooms and full bath. Good closet area is a feature of all three. Each bedroom also carries master-size dimensions and adequate window area for daylighting but set high to maintain privacy.

The basement follows the dimensions only of the living area. There is excellent space from front to back for a recreation room, as all utilities and laundry have been grouped out of the way.

This plan conforms to general FHA, VA and Building Code requirements. The plan contains 1,181 sq. ft., 23,552 cu. ft., and 422 sq. ft. in the garage. Your builder or material supplier can give you the average cost per square or cubic foot in your area.

Complete Building Plan, including Detail Sheet, Material List, and Specification Guide for Design No. H-554, may be purchased for $9.75 for first set; 2 for $18.25; 3 for $26.25; or 4 for $33.75. You may also purchase The Daily Record Plan Book showing 71 designs for 75c postpaid. Address all questions and orders to Home-Graphic Home Plan Dept., The Daily Record, Warren, Mich.

Questions And Answers

QUESTION: In the soldering of copper tubing with tin-lead solder, what kind of solder is best to use? I note figures on the solder spools and guess they indicate the proportions of tin and lead, but which type should I buy?

ANSWER: Professionals use solders of different contents for special purposes. For most copper installations, 25-50 tin-lead solder is the grade to use. It flows easily under reasonable heat and produces durable joints.

QUESTION: I am getting ready to finish the basement in our house. There are water pipes running along the ceiling about halfway between the two side walls of the house. I would like to make a dropped ceiling to cover these pipes and then attach ceiling tiles to it. Is it necessary to have a flat surface, such as plywood or hardboard, for the tiles? Or can they be attached directly to the strips of wood that will be used to make the lowered ceiling?

ANSWER: Professionals use solders of different contents for special purposes. For most copper installations, 25-50 tin-lead solder is the grade to use. It flows easily under reasonable heat and produces durable joints.

Questions And Answers

QUESTION: How can I estimate how much enamel will be necessary to paint my kitchen? I already have taken the measurements of the walls and they add up to 450 square feet.

ANSWER: Generally, one gallon of enamel will cover 400 to 500 square feet. This varies somewhat, depending on the kind and color of the paint already on the walls. Your dealer often will allow you to buy an extra can of paint on the understanding that it can be returned if it is not opened.

Dear Abby

He Was Paid

Dear Abby: I am a grown woman now, but the letter signed "Not Cheap" in your column reminded me of this true story. It happened to me when I was about fifteen years old.

A boy once took me to a movie and bought me a hamburger. When he brought me home, he told me I owed him something.

I said, "Just a minute." Then I ran in the house woke up my Dad and got the money to pay the boy for the movie and hamburger. The boy took off and I never heard from him again. My family and I still laugh about it.

NOT SO DUMB

Dear Abby: I am a teenager and I have a problem that has me stumped. Just how close do you sit to a boy when you go out on a date with him? If you sit too close, the kids will say you are lovers. If you sit too far from him you are also teased.

JUST WONDERING

Dear Wondering: Sit close enough to keep a warm friendship and far enough away to keep a cool head.

Dear Abby: My problem is a 13-year-old daughter who calls me "old-fashioned". She says I don't want her to grow up.

I finally gave in and gave her permission to use lipstick. Then behind my back she tweezed her eyebrows. She looks like a plucked chicken. I almost hit the ceiling when I saw her. Just for that I took the lipstick away from her. She looks so pale and picked I can't look at her. What can I do with her?

OLD-FASHIONED

Dear Old: Let her use a little lipstick to detract from her botched-up eyebrows. Perhaps a touch of eyebrow pencil might help to fill in the bald spots. If you have a cosmetic consultant in your area, take your daughter there to learn how to make up without making a mess of herself.

Confidential To "Trying Hard": Marriage is NOT a 50-50 proposition. It is a 75-75 proposition. Each partner puts out more than his share of the effort required to make it work. The "surplus" comes in mighty handy when one partner or the other falls a little short.

Alpern Blasts Vote Restriction

HARRISBURG (AP) — Atty. Gen. Anne X. Alpern criticized the Republican-controlled Senate yesterday for putting what she termed restrictions in Pennsylvania's new absentee voting law.

"They shredded a good bill that was prepared very carefully and gave us a bill that will lead to the disenfranchisement of many voters who were to have been helped," she declared.

The law was authorized by an amendment to the state Constitution approved by the voters last November. It will permit civilians the right to vote while absent from the polls for the first time at the April 26 primary.

Miss Alpern's principal criticism was aimed at a provision requiring applications for absentee ballots to be in the hands of county election boards no earlier than 30 days nor later than seven days before an election.

Doctor Acquitted In Damage Suit

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP) — A Sayre doctor was acquitted yesterday in a $10,000 civil damage suit accusing him of negligence in the death of an elderly woman.

U. S. District Judge Albert L. Watson directed the jury to bring in a verdict for Dr. Jesse Littleton after Mrs. Mary C. Coleman, of Trumansburg, N.Y., withdrew her suit.

Mrs. Coleman's mother, Mrs. Belle Hatch, 68, also of Trumansburg, fractured both legs on Aug. 7, 1956, when she slipped while getting into a wheelchair at Robert Packer Hospital, Sayre. She died 16 days later.

Dr. Littleton, an X-ray specialist, had examined Mrs. Hatch. Mrs. Coleman's suit accused the doctor of being responsible for her death. Dr. Littleton testified he was not responsible for the woman from the time she left his direct care.

Into Spring Milady Goes, Elegant From Tip To Toes

New York—There's no need to get the brass band out to welcome your fashion editor home from Couture Group press week in New York, but The Daily Record's own personal representative feels that she deserves that dinner which the home-town husbands promised if she could convince their wives last Spring's wardrobe is still wearable.

It certainly is. There are still plenty of short jackets, necklines that stand away from the neck, and waistlines where nature put them. Moreover, the hemline is static at one to three inches below the knee, depending on whose knee.

The difference in the fashions is more subtle: the brief, boxy jacket is giving way to jackets which are shaped in front and rounded and longer in back or to longer, pipeline jackets which are often belted. Shoulders are wider and skirts tend to narrow at the hemline.

If you plan to buy something new and want to be sure it is in the rising fashion, you might look for:

Sleeves that are not "set-in" but flow out from the bodice in the form of cap sleeves, capes, dolman or kimono sleeves or in shapes like the butterfly, funnel and petal.

Waistlines are still indented at the proper place but there is a tendency to lower the waistline with hip yokes or belts resting on the hipline or by long torso bodices. The tunic and tiered skirt is also important.

The whole look is tall, lithe and long-legged.

Hats are big and important to balance the new width on top. Shoes remain needle-toed. In fact the whole week stressed the hand-to-toe complete costume with dress, hat, shoes, jewelry and accessories tying in for an uncluttered look of being well-dressed.

In the collections this look was emphasized with costumes: coats or jacket matching almost every dress from daytime through dark. The look may be easier to achieve than you imagine. Few readers will be buying originals from the designers which range in price from $100 to $300, with a few lower and many higher.

More of you may be buying what the Couture Group terms "budget fashions" from $29 to $100. Those were shown at the closing Variety Group luncheon at the Astor, adapted to the price range and to the special needs of individual women.

Leonard Arkin predicted more "party" dresses and showed a lot of them; Suzy Perette, Mari and Blauner deal with the mass production market; Casino Classics for separates; Ma'm selle for the small woman; and Helen Lee of Alyssa for the kindergarten set—which also has its matching jackets and abstract prints, you may be sure.

And you may be sure that the fashions will filter down into what we call the "budget price" field from $14.95 to $30, and will be stocked in our own stores.

The things that budget priced clothes can not duplicate are the hand-work and the hand-fitting of the designers' custom-made clothes, nor can they match the fabrics which they have gathered from all over the world. However, they can embody many of the same features: clothes that travel without musing, pack well and are climate-proof. As the commentators kept saying: "Clothes that are world-wide and year-round."

They can also look for high fashion colors and prints. The prints, both the abstracts and the florals have a hand-painted or hand-blocked look. The neutrals, particularly grey and beige are good, but even those are outshone by black and white combinations. There is less navy blue. The greens and browns are muted, the pinks, blues and yellows are bright and chalky.

Generally speaking, the styles this Spring are designed to make women look taller, prettier and like a woman. As they say in the trade "Wear them in good health."

Just Between Us—

—By Bobby Westbrook

A wet hen could never be as mad as a woman who got up early to keep a hair appointment only to find when she got there that she didn't have one. And if one uncured woman can kick up a storm, imagine what the Hotel Astor sounded like with about 100 women in the same situation.

In a public relations stunt which backfired, a firm which shall be nameless had invited the women fashion editors to join them after the Couture Group showings closed for what they called "A Day's Vacation in New York" with "beautification at a salon," lunch, a museum visit and dinner.

It sounded fine so a lot of fashion editors went to bed without benefit of hair-nets, bobby-pins or curlers. Well, it turned out that the firm had trouble getting hair appointments for 225 women and could only arrange for 60. The only trouble was that they forgot to notify the other 165 that they weren't included, not even in the lunch and dinner.

All of whom proceeded to get more and more unbecomingly by the minute, both outside and in. Some of us wound up at the Hotel Algonquin to get our feelings soothed by the Bridal Fashion Council who sent us a sixpence and an invitation to drop in any time from dusk on Friday to Sunday noon.

Sure enough the two-man marathon serving as hosts were there, game but groggy, and true to the literary tradition of the Algonquin famed for the Benchley-Woolcott "vicious circle," they had a real live author there: Rufus Jarman to spin us a tale or two. I was particularly interested because he was the man who wrote the Fred Waring profile in The New Yorker and had helped Tom Waring carve those totem poles at Shawnee.

The public relations field is a funny thing. Even to advertising-conscious newspaper women, some stunts are irresistible... like getting a bikini, for instance, when a full-sized bathing suit would never have earned a line.

Or take the pigeons in the Gourmet Penthouse at the Plaza. The news that Reed and Barton are introducing two new silver patterns: the Lark and the Star wouldn't be news; but those darn pigeons. Stars were easy; they had them hanging all over the place for each editor to choose her own which held a number.

Larks, however, aren't easy to come by so they substituted the homing pigeons which will be racing for Stamford, Conn., with numbers tied to their legs to determine the winners.

However, at this point there is only one homing pigeon I'm interested in and that is your representative at designers' Fashion Week who, however unbeautiful, undesigned and unfashionable she may be, is mighty glad to be heading home.

EASTER ANGEL—The halo look in hats is designed to give a look of wide-eyed innocence to their wearers. Here is a halo beret by Emme with black straw contrasting with the snow white chiffon that frames the face and shaws down in streamers that can trail or tuck away. (Millinery Institute of America)

NATURAL GRACE in hair fashion trends is shown in the rhythmically proportioned style in a natural flow of soft draped waves. Much shorter in back, it is set in soft and swirling waves.

FLUID EASE of the new Spring style is this afternoon dress of white silk linen, widely belted in what is almost a sash of almond-shaded matching fabric from the Christian Dior of New York Spring collection.

THE ALL-TOGETHER LOOK is here demonstrated with Anne Fogerty's gold and white silk polka dotted skirt dress and red wool coat for spring. The coat is lined with matching dress fabric.

Whitehall Scorer, Man Of Many Talents

The Whitehall basketball team that played Stroud Union here Friday has a score keeper that's a better shot than the ball players. When this cat gets in action, he really goes.

Despite the fact that in the Lehigh Valley loop the home scorer is the official scorer the Whitehall gentleman, who is a teacher at the school in his spare time, takes charge at the scorer's table even when his team is on the road.

Not trusting the timer's horn to notify the officials as to timeouts and bonus shots, the Whitehall keeper brings his own whistle and blows it almost as much as the officials.

In last year's Stroudsburg-Whitehall game at Whitehall, the gentleman stopped play by sounding his whistle because of some minor disagreement in the score books.

And he does not confine his abilities to scorekeeping. He instructs the officials, coaches the team, directs the cheerleaders, tells the managers what to do and in general makes a nuisance of himself.

Beck To Head West End Ball Club

Francis Beck was elected president of the West End A. C. baseball club at the outfit's recent reorganization meeting.

Other officers are William Kresge, vice president; Wayne Wise, secretary; Floyd Buskirk, treasurer; Wes Schafer, manager and Frank Wernett, Lloyd Altomese, Arlie Smale, George Resler and William Monetz, directors.

Jack Kramer's pro tennis tour will hold forth at the Philadelphia Arena on Feb. 3 and 4.

Ken Rosewall, is expected to give Pancho Gonzales the current pro champ, a run for the money on the tour, which includes 60 matches.

Also making the round-the-world tour are Alex Olmedo, the former Davis Cup star, who is finding it a little tougher in the pro ranks, Tony Trabert and the two-handed star, Pancho Segura.

Low Head will not make the trip. He has been advised by physicians to rest a bad back which has plagued him for some time.

Booth And Smokey Get Show Spot In Trials

Bud Booth of Brodheadsville and his English setter, Fieldcrest's Silver Smoke, won third place in the recent Shooting Dog Field Trial, sponsored by the Lehigh Valley Pointer and Setter Club.

Booth picked up his handling experience from Gordon Latzko of the Fieldcrest Kennels the outfit that bred Smokey.

The Varsity "E" club meets tomorrow night at 8 p.m. at Stanky's Hotel at Craigs Meadow.

Members of the Paradise Valley Gun Club are asked to pick up their wild-life feed at the post office in Scot Run.

The idea behind the project is to provide a food source while ice and snow covers natural vegetation.

There's a new type of runaway boat that will be on the market soon.

Pontoons Submerged To Increase Rate Of Speed

The rig has two 13-foot catamaran pontoons, which are lowered into the water when the boat reaches a certain speed.

With the floats in the water, the main hull of the boat is lifted free of the water. In this position the boat rides almost without pitching and can travel at a much higher rate of speed than conventional type boats.

Other features of the boat include crash-padding in the cockpit, a telescoping windshield, convertible fiberglass top and an air-plane type steering wheel that can be operated from either side of the boat.

East Gets Slight Nod Over West

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rookie scoring sensation Wilt Chamberlain of Philadelphia and Boston's Bob Cousy give the East a slight edge over the West in the 10th annual National Basketball Assn. All-Star game here Friday.

Chamberlain, former Kansas All-American who leads the NBA in scoring and rebounding, is a hometown favorite in the first All-Star contest to be played in Philadelphia's Convention Hall.

Cousy, who has been picked on every All-Star team since he came out of Holy Cross in 1950, heads seven of the classic's all-time records, including most points scored (122) and most assists (56).

While the West beat the East 124-108 at Detroit last year, the East still holds the edge in the series 6-3.

The contest will begin at 9 p.m. (EST).

Hedging the West squad will be Cincinnati's Jack Twyman, second leading scorer in the NBA, and St. Louis' Bob Pettit, whose 2,015 points last year set a new single season NBA scoring record, and who Sunday night topped the 10,000-point mark in his sixth season.

Mounties Whip Slatington

STROUD UNION roared to a 19-0 lead after seven minutes of the first period and never looked back, as it defeated Slatington 75-62 on the Slater's court.

Slatington never got closer than 12 points in the ball game despite a 31 point effort by Bill Jones.

The Mountaineers scoring duo of Todd Williams and Ray Loeffler accounted for 42 points in the upset. Williams bagged 24 and Loeffler added 18. Leo Frailey, parlayed jump shots with several drive-in shots for 17 points.

Control Boards

The taller Mountie club completely dominated the boards, limiting Slatington to only one shot at the hoop on most of its trips down the court.

Trailing 56-38 going into the last period, Jones staged a one-man rally by tossing in 14 points. The five-foot, eleven-inch sharpshooter mixed his scoring shots, hitting about half from the outside with the remainder on close-in jumpers and lay-ups.

The game was relatively foul free with only 22 personal calls.

From the free throw line, Stroud Union hit nine of 15.

Football Owners Set For Stormy Session

As Expansion Problem Draws Lawyers

By RALPH BERNSTEIN
MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — The scrambling is over and the real game kicks off Wednesday when 12 National Football League club owners gather to elect a commissioner and resolve the thorny problem of expansion.

Other problems expected to be debated at the meeting include proposed playing rule changes, player association relations, the player limit, minimum game guarantees, radio and television contracts and the congressional investigation into professional sports.

Veteran observers are unanimous in the opinion this could be the most important meeting in the 40-year history of the league.

Lawyers Attending

Almost every owner is attended by his lawyer. George Halas, leader of the move for expansion this year, set the tone when he said, "This is the first time I have ever attended a league meeting without my attorney."

The first step will be a motion to amend the constitution, making 10 of the 12 votes enough to admit new teams. Such a move now requires unanimous consent. Ten votes can push through the amendment.

George Preston Marshall, volatile owner of the Washington Redskins, is emphatically against increasing the league membership. He is joined in this opinion by Walter Wolfner, executive director of the Chicago Cardinals. Marshall would leave the league open to charges of trying to destroy the new American Football League.

Three "Ifs"

The other owners apparently favor expansion, but list three mighty big "ifs." They are accord on new East-West conference alignments, schedules and method of allotting players to new teams.

The owners, with the exception of Marshall, Sunday night heard representatives from Minneapolis-St. Paul, Dallas and St. Louis extol the pro football possibilities of their cities. A Miami, Fla., representative will be heard Wednesday morning.

It is believed that election of a commissioner will be the first order of business.

An early poll of the owners disclosed sentiment for only two men, acting commissioner Austin H. Gansel, the former FBI agent, and attorney Marshall Leahy of San Francisco.

Acts Surprised

Noting the surprised look on the listener's face, Whitey suddenly asked:

"What do you think? Should I have gotten a cut?"

"Well," said the listener, hunting a tactful reply, "I don't know. You did win 16 games while losing 10 and your 3.04 earned run average wasn't bad."

"Aw, who are you kidding?" chided Ford. "I had a lousy year. I didn't win a big game all season. Who did I beat? Kansas City and Washington."

Pay Back

"Know something?" he asked. "I'm determined to pay the Yankees back. I'm going to win those big ones next season. I'm going to be the old Whitey Ford again. I'm going to get into the best condition of my life."

By the way, had the contract been mailed back to the Yankee office?

"No," replied Whitey, "I couldn't find a stamp."

Whitey Ford's Pay Not Cut; He's The Most Surprised

By JOE REICHLER
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Whitey Ford, the New York Yankees' premier left-handed pitcher, received his 1960 contract in the mails Monday.

He looked at the salary figures and blinked. He took a better and longer look. The figures were large and clear, $35,000, the same salary he received last year.

"The first thing I did," Ford said Tuesday, "was search around the house for a stamp. I thought sure the front office had made a mistake. I was going to sign that contract and get it back to them as fast as I could before they changed their minds."

Air Station Loses Appeal

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—The State Supreme Court ruled yesterday that Wyoming Radio, Inc., operators of Station WNAC in Nanticoke, must arbitrate all unsettled disputes with the National Assn. of Broadcast Employees and Technicians, representing its staff employees.

The firm had obtained an injunction in Luzerne County Common Pleas Court barring picketing of the radio station last July.

In a unanimous decision Monday the high tribunal dissolved the injunction and said that arbitration, as provided for in a labor contract, must be carried out. The union said the company had refused to arbitrate a dispute.

The dispute involved a William Phillips, who was not a member of the union, but who was doing "on-the-air" announcing. The union claimed that under its contract this kind of announcing could be done only by staff employees, which Phillips was not.

Judge Michael Musmanno wrote that the question is "arbitrable under the contract both parties entered into voluntarily."

MONROE County YMCA will sponsor a teen-age dance Saturday night, Jan. 30, for the benefit of the National Foundation.

John R. Wilson, general secretary, said the dance will be held from 8 to 11 p.m. and all receipts will be turned over to the foundation committee headed by Peter Wyckoff.

Frank Talasz, who supervises the weekly teen-age dances at the YMCA, will be in charge of the special dance. He said there will be no expenses connected with the affair. Regular admission prices will prevail.

Order Issued

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — President Chiang Kai-Shek issued an order last night convening the National Assembly Feb. 29, when it will try to devise a way to keep him in office. Presidential elections are slated for May 20, when Chiang winds up his second six-year term. The constitution limits the president's office to two terms. The Assembly is expected to get around the bar by deferring elections "until the mainland has been recovered" from the Communists.

He will be at the Office of the Director of Veterans Affairs, 615 Sargh St., Stroudsburg, Pennsylvania, from 10:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m.

Annual income questionnaires have been mailed to widows, children, dependent parents and disabled veterans who are now receiving payments from the Veterans Administration where income is a factor. Failure to submit income questionnaires requested by the VA may mean discontinuance of your VA payments. All income questionnaires should be completed and submitted to the Veterans Administration as soon as possible.

The chamber said a further measure of Monroe County's federal tax bite is obtained by comparing it with the county's total assessed valuation of taxable real property.

Assessment Total

The assessment total for county tax purposes in 1958 was $24,057,111, according to the State Tax Equalization Board.

The chamber estimates the statewide cost to Pennsylvanians of the federal budget for the 1961 fiscal year as $5,761,500,000, an increase of $207.5 million over the present fiscal year budget presented by the President a year ago.

Two Deeds Are Filed

TWO DEEDS were filed yesterday in the office of Mrs. Jeannette F. Batory, Monroe County register and recorder: Ada F. Feller, Hamilton Township, to Ruth Paradise, Plainville, N. Seventh-Day School Unit Meets Today

THE Seventh-day Adventist Home and School Association will hold their first meeting of the year today at 7:45 p.m. in the school auditorium.

Mrs. George Sox, the association leader, said the theme of the meeting will be "Brothers and Sisters," aimed at helping parents to raise their boys and girls in love and without partiality.

Mrs. Sox said three talks will be featured for the meeting. Mrs. L. D. Warren will set the pattern for thought by presenting highlights from the family life of some biblical characters.

Mrs. Julius Botelho will bring some ideas and suggestions to parents toward helping raise sons and daughters without showing partiality.

Helpful Aids

Mrs. Kenneth Bennett will give some helpful suggestions regarding the "little folk" who always are given the "hand me downs" from big brother or sister.

During the meeting Ann Bennett will bring a special musical number on the piano.

State Okays Use Of Funds For Projects

HARRISBURG (AP)—The State Highway and Bridge Authority Tuesday approved using $3,447,400 of unallocated authority funds to finance highways projects in Berks, Montgomery and Forest counties.

The projects, recommended to the authority board by the State Highways Department, would be financed equally by the authority and the federal government.

The projects and the estimated total construction costs are: Berks—A part of the U.S. 422 Reading bypass, from near the south Reading city line to a connection with existing U.S. 422, a distance of 3.29 miles, $1,729,200.

Montgomery — Bethlehem Pike (old U.S. 309) from 0.01 of a mile north of Stenton Ave., on the Philadelphia county line, northerly to a point near the Pennsylvania Turnpike at Whitmarsh, a total of 2.40 miles, $970,000.

Forest — A legislative route bridge and approaches over the Allegheny River at Tionesta, an overall length of 0.72 of a mile, $1,195,000.

The authority also approved spending $75,000 for correctional work needed on a bridge being built as part of a section of the Penn-Can Highway in Susquehanna and Lackawanna counties.

The federal government, which is paying 90 per cent of the costs of the federal interstate project, will pay the remainder of the $750,000.

Highways Secretary Park H. Martin explained that the expenditure was needed to correct damage caused by a landslide which occurred after completion of the main piers of the bridge.

He said the severe winter weather experienced in the area last year appeared to be the main contributing factor to the landslide.

Mrs. Simpson Seeks Seat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. Richard M. Simpson, widow of the late Republican congressman, Tuesday offered herself as a candidate to succeed her husband.

"That the sentiment in our district indicates that I present myself as a candidate . . . to carry on the principles and philosophies for which Mr. Simpson firmly stood."

She said she would consider it "an honor and privilege" to follow her husband in Congress from Pennsylvania's 18th District.

Republican leaders will meet next Monday at Huntingdon, Pa., Simpson's home, to choose a candidate to succeed him. At least four others are believed in the running.

Coasts Hit By Paralyzing Snowstorms

By The Associated Press

PARALYZING snowstorms hit along the nation's north Atlantic and north Pacific coasts Tuesday.

In between the wintry blasts, arctic air chilled wide sections of the country.

A rare 24-hour snowfall virtually paralyzed the Portland, Ore., area — a region usually warmed by Pacific Ocean winds. The snow, ranging up to a foot, closed all schools and many business establishments and blocked main highways.

By midday, the storm that blanketed the Northeast with heavy snow moved off the New England coast. But it left parts of New England wallowing in knee-deep snow.

Subzero readings were common at midday at many high places in the western Montana - eastern Idaho area. Afternoon temperatures were well below freezing from the Upper and Middle Mississippi Valley to the West Coast mountains.

Freeze Forecast

A hard overnight freeze was forecast from Mississippi into Georgia and northern Florida. Newport, Vt., had 21 inches of snow on the ground; Mount Washington, N.H., and Massena, N.Y., each 13 inches, and Rumford, Maine, 10 inches.

The fast-moving storm traveled from the Texas-Oklahoma Panhandle to New England causing at least 23 deaths, mostly in traffic accidents. There were 7 deaths in Nebraska, 5 in Colorado, 4 in Illinois, 3 in Wisconsin, 2 in New York and 1 each in Texas and Maine.

'The Daily Investor'Management Affects Prices

By William A. Doyle

Q. My broker recently told me that a certain stock would be selling at about double its present price if the company which the stock represents had a different president.

This really floored me. If a stock has a good earnings and dividend record and apparently good prospects for the future what difference does it make who is president of the company?

A. Your broker may have exaggerated somewhat. But it is true that the top executives of a corporation can have a big effect on the price of the company's stock in the market.

Many investors "buy management." They purchase stocks of companies whose officials have proven their ability to manage a company at a profit—to the benefit of stockholders. After all, top management can make a company either a success or a failure.

There are some "management teams" that have taken over the top spots at a company, improved that company and then moved on to other companies. Those "teams" have followings of investors, just as baseball managers have fans.

There are many top management people who do a terrific job. Yet, they don't attract attention and aren't appreciated.

And there are some (don't ask me to name them—libel laws, you know) who have either picked up bad reputations or have made enough enemies to make the stocks of the companies they manage unpopular. In some cases, this is unfair. In others, it is justified.

Q. The customer's man who handles my account at the brokerage firm where I do business has advised me to buy 100 shares of a certain stock. When I asked him why he recommended that stock, he looked wise and said, "Just buy it and put it away."

He wouldn't (maybe, couldn't) provide me with any information about the stock. Investigating on my own, I have been able to find out a little (but not very much) about the stock. What should I do?

A. Don't buy any of that stock until you find out a great deal more about it.

Not all brokerage firms will supply information about individual securities. But any firm that recommends a certain stock most certainly should be expected to back up that recommendation with sound reasoning.

Your customer's man may "look wise." But he is really dopey if he doesn't at least tell you where to get information about stocks he recommends.

Q. I buy stock to make easy dollars. I now own 100 shares of Republic Aviation, purchased at $17 a share. I want to sell it at the highest possible price. How high do you think it will reach? Please don't be scared to answer this question.

A. I'm not scared. I'll answer—because I don't know. I do know that, by trying for "easy dollars," you are playing a dangerous game. And it's even more dangerous, because you hope to sell out at the absolute highest price your stock will hit.

In any stock price swing, there is normally only one transaction at the "high." It's unlikely you will be lucky enough to catch the high.

Mr. Doyle will answer only representative letters of general interest in his column. He cannot answer phone queries.

Two Nabbed In Raid Freed

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Two men arrested Sunday in a police raid on a party in a Society Hill section mansion have been freed by Municipal Judge J. Sydney Hoffman.

George F. Kearney, 64, a former newspaper executive, was freed on a charge that he was proprietor of a disorderly house.

Philip R. Pitkoff, 21, was freed of a charge that he corrupted the morals of a minor.

Police said they found party participants in various stages of undress.

Kearney was president, general manager and editor of the old Evening Ledger.

Workmen's Occupational Disease Changes Listed

A DIGEST of the liberalization of the State's Workmen's Compensation and Occupational Disease Laws by the 1959 session of the General Assembly has been distributed to industries, insurance companies, self-insurers and labor organizations, Secretary of Labor and Industry William L. Ratt, Jr. announced yesterday. Most of them become effective the thirtieth day of this month.

Principal compensation liberalizations, which approximate thirteen per cent increases across-the-board are:

Maximum total disability benefits are increased to $42.50 per week from $37.50, and the maximum for partial disability to $32.50 per week from $27.50.

Death benefits have been increased throughout the schedule of payments for such benefits. A widow or widower with three or more children will receive $42.50 weekly as compared with $37.50 previously. One orphaned child will now receive $17, weekly as compared with the previous $15. The benefits for totally dependent parents have been increased to $25 weekly from $22. The burial allowance has been increased to $500 from $425.

Principal occupational disease law changes are:

Maximum benefits for disability arising out of silicosis, anthracosis and asbestosis have been increased from $10,000 to $16,500.

Examination, by a physician selected by the State is now provided for.

Payments by insurers, medical and other healing arts services, and employee or fraternal or benefit associations may be subrogated to payments made by employers through agreement or award, under certain circumstances.

Diseases of the heart and lungs resulting in permanent or temporary disability or death to full-time, salaried firemen of more than four years' service, from exposure to heat and smoke or from extreme over-exertion in line of duty, are now covered by the occupational disease law. This change was effective Dec. 10, 1959.

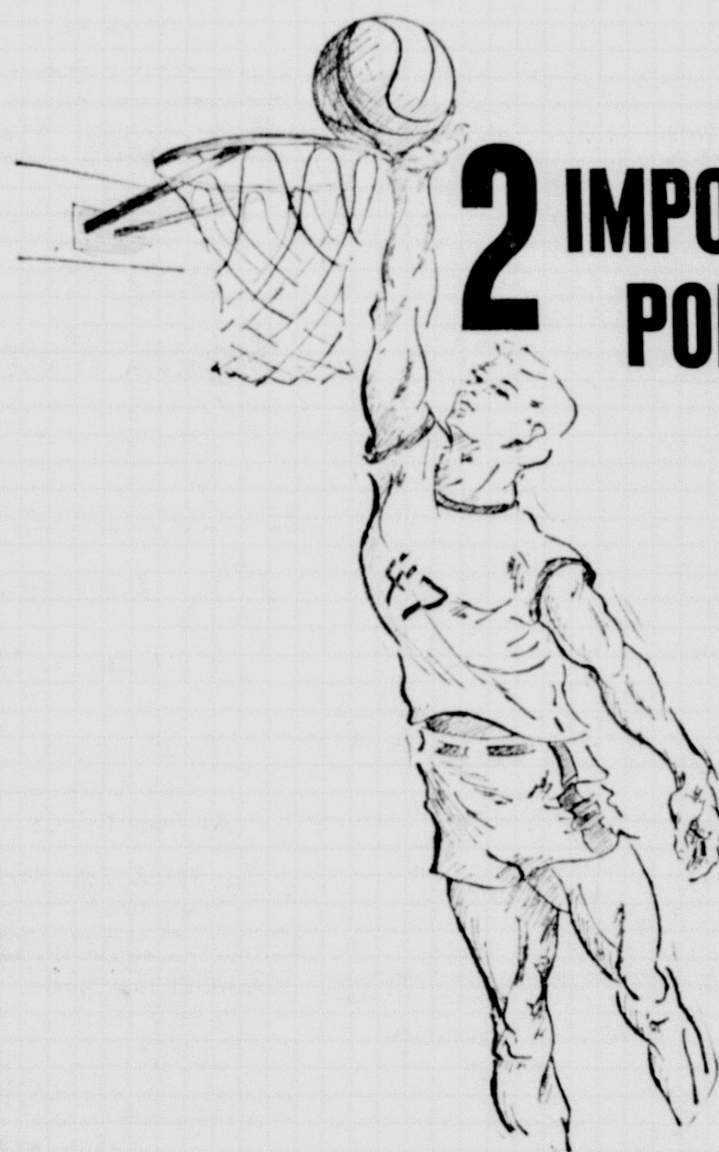

Allentown Boy Injured Fatally

ALLENTOWN, Pa. (AP)—

Michael T. Griffith, 6, was injured fatally Monday when he slipped on a patch of ice and fell under the wheels of a school bus backing out of a driveway at his home in nearby Neffs.

State Trooper John E. Hahn said bus driver Thomas J. Klinger, of Orfield, drove off unaware of the accident.

SIN has many tools, but a lie is the handle which fits them all.

Held Again For Swindling

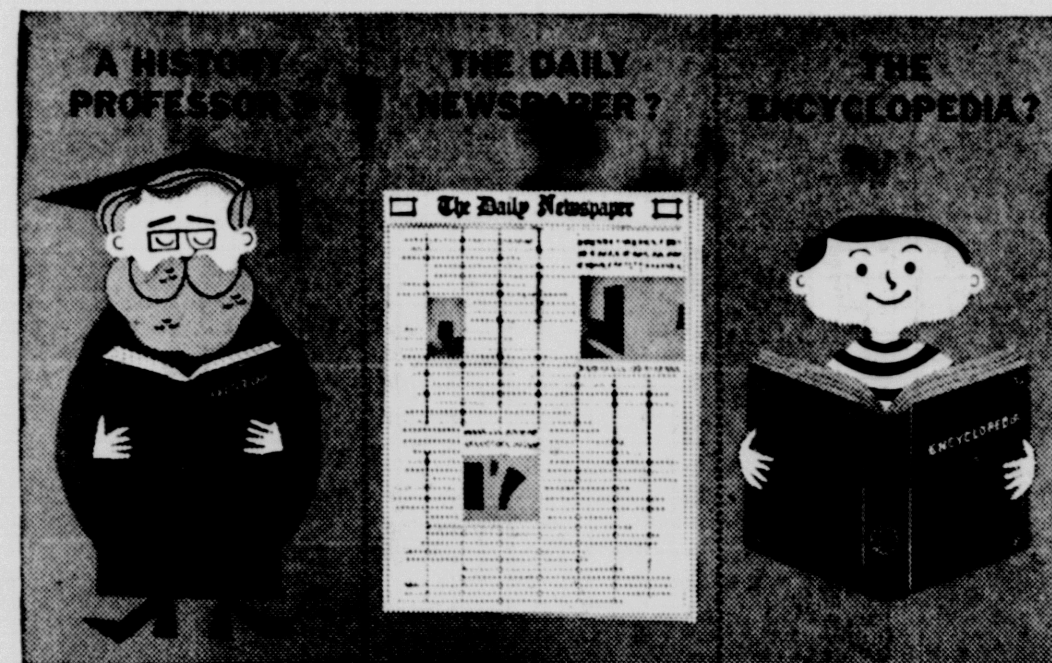

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Donald U. Hildreth, 61, of suburban Gulph Mills, Pa., has been charged again with swindling a number of investors in stock deals.

He was held Monday in $2,500 bail after investigators told Magistrate E. David Kaiser that Hildreth had sold securities for a number of persons and then reported to them he had sold the securities for less money than he actually received. The amount Hildreth allegedly kept was not disclosed.

Last November Hildreth was charged in Montgomery County with defrauding a number of persons in securities sales. That case still is pending.
